Play description:

Order of the Day is a wildly current-affairs show, created in a single day. In a time when news comes at you in an overwhelming avalanche, Order of the Day filters out the essentials and presents them in its own distinctive, theatrical way. Texts and music are written on the spot—sometimes even during the performance itself—and performed script-in-hand; this is the essence of this theatrical adventure. In one day, current events are deciphered, desecrated, and dissected, and in that same day, the show is created. The songs, sketches, and scenes are performed only once, making it a unique, one-off experience.

Sharp sketches, incisive songs, sensitive observations, and poetic dialogues, all mixed together. A collection of attempts to impose order on the news of the day—with a guaranteed descent into complete chaos, yet always accompanied by the magic of the moment. The creators' observations form the foundation, but the audience's reactions are the icing on the cake.
